Cube Gallery is excited to announce our latest group exhibition, Fired and Refracted. This is an event that celebrates the different ways in which colour, shape and form can be expressed and manipulated into an entirely new entity, as these artists mould, paint, fire, and sculpt to create innovative and inspiring new designs.

On display will be different interpretations of these classical themes as they reflect freedom of technique and exploration. Extending from the 10th - 25th of October, this event will be featuring the commendable artworks of Kal Mansur, Helene Morbu, and Hildegard Pax.

Cube Gallery will be hosting a special event exclusive to the private viewing (9th), where Hildegard Pax will be presenting a thoughtful conversation on her creative practice, as she explains the meticulous methods and care necessary in creating her works.

Hélène Morbu

French ceramicist Hélène Morbu, delights us with her craft as she creates sleek shapes and imbues thoughtful textures into her work that reflect harmony and balance. Each piece is unique, as she crafts tools that make specific shapes and textures possible.

Hélène's work is sculpted and moulded with care and accuracy, as the artist takes her inspiration from art deco architecture, and the details found in plants, minerals and different materials.

Hélène has been shown at acclaimed exhibitions in France, Germany and Tokyo and was recognised in 2019 by Ateliers d'Art de France by receiving the "The Creator" prize, and the public prize at the Céramique 14 Show.

Hildegard Pax

An artist who alchemises colour and glass, German born Hildegard Pax has made her work a delicate and expressive study through the wonders of science and art. Her main materials include dichroic and architectural glass, where she experiments with the frequency of light, shadow and sandblasting to create beautiful displays of reflective and refractive shapes and colours.

A finalist in the London Contemporary Art Prize 2018, Hildegard's work has been showcased around the world at prestigious art fairs such as Collect, London, Art Miami, and SOFA Chicago.

Kal Mansur

Canadian abstraction artist Kal Mansur works towards finding the balance between abundance and restraint. This artist's work incorporates geometric shapes, lines, and vibrant tones of colour with perspex and hand-painted acrylic to create his vision. He aspires to develop conceptual work inspired by different points in his life, and the idea of connecting shared experiences.

Kal has exhibited in solo and group exhibitions in Toronto, LA and New York, and has also collaborated with Tiffany & Co., with work presented in Toronto Metropolitan University and George Brown College.
